

Workshop - Managing complex projects and transactions

In an ever more demanding and competitive marketplace, first rate technical skills are not enough to put you ahead of the pack with astute clients. In long running and large scale projects, litigation, and transaction work, lawyers need to effectively plan, manage, monitor, and report to satisfy clients and keep projects on track.

Julian Midwinter & Associates has developed a workshop covering useful strategies for professionals to take charge of projects and manage complex transactions effectively.

In a highly participative workshop, we equip lawyers with useful tools and practical skills to:

- deal with clients in ways which instil confidence
- keep stakeholders engaged
- identify and mitigate risks
- manage perceptions
- establish, shape, and respond to expectations
- develop clear scopes of work
- allocate tasks and accountabilities
- define timelines and key outcomes
- identify milestones, assessment points, and 'go/no go' decision moments
- create realistic project budgets.

Managing complex projects and transactions is a fast paced, advanced workshop for those senior lawyers and professionals charged with managing important, high-value, large-scale, and/or long-running matters, transactions and disputes.

In a two hour, half day and full day formats, we can tailor this workshop to meet the needs of your team. Sessions are filled with real world examples, contemporary insights, and useful tips and techniques to get your team thinking and acting more strategically and effectively in managing important and multifaceted projects.
